American Battlefield Trust Park Day is 6 April

American Battlefield Trust's annual park day will be 6 April. This is an opportunity to help maintain national, state, and local historic sites. Some of the national parks need help more than usual because of the shut-down earlier this year. <https://www.battlefields.org/events/park-day> If you don't use the internet, call Courtney Wilke at (202) 367-1861 x7222.

Sites in Georgia include:

Be sure to check with the sites because some will hold Park Day on a different date from 6 April.

Old Clinton "War Days" Festival is 4-5 May

The annual Old Clinton War Days event www.oldclinton.org/war-days-3/ occurs on 4 & 5 May. On both days, gates open at 9 a.m. and battle reenactments (Sunshine Church and Griswoldville) start at 2:05 p.m. The event also features food, crafts, and artifact displays. Proceeds ($5 for adults, $3 for children age 6 to 18) are used to preserve the Old Clinton Historic District. The memorial service at 8:05 p.m. Saturday at the Old Clinton Cemetery is free. Old Clinton is 12 miles northeast of Macon, just a block west of US 129.

In February, Georgia Battlefields Association contacted the Jones County Historic Preservation Commission and the Board of Commissioners to argue against a rezoning that would have allowed commercial development of a property in the Old Clinton Historic District.

Atlanta Cyclorama opened to the public on 22 February

On 22 February, the restored Cyclorama opened to the public in its new home at the Atlanta History Center. Visitors to the Center are given tickets with a time for entry to the painting and diorama. The process for obtaining advance tickets is explained at this link: <http://www.atlantahistorycenter.com/explore/destinations/atlanta-cyclorama>

Visitors will pass the locomotive Texas display and the Zero Milepost on the way to the Upper Gallery, which gives some context about the Civil War and also brings back the interactive War in Our Backyards software that allows you to see what wartime events occurred in the Atlanta area. On the floor below is the Lower Gallery, adjacent to the Cyclorama's entrance. The Lower Gallery has displays about the painting process, including draft sketches.

Anyone who has seen the painting in its previous venue at Grant Park will likely be surprised at how bright it appears. This is a result of the extensive cleaning and restoration over the last two years and improved lighting. The diorama has been reinstalled using the restored figurines from before, but the artificial landscape was not salvageable, so an entirely new terrain was fabricated.

A new, 12-minute presentation about the history of the Cyclorama is projected on the painting. Gone is the recorded narrative about what the painting depicts. Instead, touch screens in the area below the viewing platform allow a visitor to select sections of the painting and read details about the events shown in that section. This area also has information about the restoration of missing sections and conservation of the whole painting.

The opening has drawn national as well as local media attention:

150 years ago this month – March 1869

As of 3 March, 11,237 U.S. Army troops are on occupation duty in former Confederate states.

On 4 March, U.S. Grant is inaugurated as President of the United States.

On 12 March, Major General George Meade relinquishes command of the Department of the South (North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama) and leaves Atlanta for assignment as commander of the Military Division of the Atlantic in Philadelphia.

The Georgia legislature adjourns after refusing to ratify the 15th Amendment, which states that the right to vote shall not be denied on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.
